

Conclusions

- There have been no new hydrilla finds in California since 1997
- Overall, the number of plants is declining in each of the projects
- Constant vigilance needed because hydrilla can flare up unexpectedly.
- Herbicide levels in water not exceeding Beneficial Use Protective Water Quality Limits